Writing World War II Stories

Have you researched your World War II soldier or civilian and need tips on where to go next? Have you organized your materials - digital and paper records? Have you written the story? Are you unsure where to start?

Using organizational tips, attendees will learn ways to organize their military records. Then using examples of writing prompts and writing formulas, attendees will learn ways to begin writing their World War II stories.

In this hands-on, engaging, and informative presentation, Jennifer shares:

- Basic World War II research tips for soldier research.
- Tips on organizing military records, both digital and paper.
- A formula for writing a military story
- Writing prompts to get your writing flowing.

My book Stories from the World War II Battlefield, Writing the Stories of War Volume 3 will be available for purchase. It covers this topic in-depth and contains workbook sections.

This program will appeal to veterans, surviving family members, writers, genealogists, historians, students, and those interested in learning how to write military stories.

To book this program, contact:

Jennifer Holik
Email: info@wwiirwc.com
Website: http://wwiirwc.com